Sentence Composition: Two Tasks

Example. The boy has hair.
The girl has hair.
The boy and girl have hair.

Example. and
I like peas and carrots.

Sentence Combining

Score Only Sentences that Meet Prerequisite Criteria

Boys and girls have hair.
Boys have hair.
Girls have hair.
1. Does the response include the essential information from each of the original sentences? STOP.
   - Circle Y in Meets Prereqs column.
   - Circle 0 for Semantics & Grammar, Mechanics, and Extra Credit.
   - Begin scoring of next SC item.

2. Does the response simply restate the original sentences without changing or combining them?
   STOP.
   - Circle N in Meets Prereqs column.
   - Circle 0 for Semantics & Grammar, Mechanics, and Extra Credit.
   - Begin scoring of next SC item.

3. Does the response include more than one complete sentence, a run-on sentence, or a fragment?
   STOP.
   - Circle N in Meets Prereqs column.
   - Circle 0 for Semantics & Grammar, Mechanics, and Extra Credit.
   - Proceed to scoring of next SC item.

Complete Sentence
An independent clause that may be combined with other independent and/or dependent clauses to express a complete thought.
1. I like soccer.
2. I like soccer; I like tennis.
3. I like tennis, but I do not understand the rules of the game.
4. I do not play soccer because my kicking skills are poor.
5. Sam is a great athlete, he was an A student, and he won the Blue Ribbon for the 4-H club.

Independent Clause
♦ a group of words that contains a subject and verb and expresses a complete thought.
♦ can stand alone as a sentence.
  - E.g., The lawn is green.
  - E.g., The lawn is green, and the sky is blue.
  - E.g., Cats are pets, but tigers are not domesticated.
Dependent (Subordinate) Clause

- a group of words that contains a subject and verb, but does not express a complete thought.
- cannot stand alone as a sentence.
- begins with a subordinate conjunction (e.g., although, because, till, while) or a relative pronoun (e.g., that, which).
  - Susie bought a new, smaller refrigerator because her old one suddenly stopped working.

Commas and Coordinating Conjunctions

- A comma is required before a coordinating conjunction connecting two independent clauses.
- Some grammar books allow a comma omission if each of the sentences is short; however, to avoid subjective judgment and establish consistency of scoring, this type of comma usage is always required for the purpose of scoring the WIAT–III.
- Omitting this comma is a punctuation error, not a run-on sentence.

Run-on Sentence

Comma Splice

- I like tennis, I do not understand the rules of the game. (Not joined with coordinating conjunction.)
- John is a good athlete, he is an A student and he won the Blue Ribbon from 4-H. (Not joined with comma and coordinating conjunction.)

Fused Sentence

- 2+ independent clauses joined without a coordinating conjunction and without a punctuation mark.
  - I like tennis I like soccer
Sentence Fragment

A sentence fragment is either:
- a phrase that lacks a subject, a verb, or both, or
- a subordinate clause or phrase that contains a subject and verb, but begins with a subordinating word and does not include an independent clause.

This the best game.
Because if you don’t.

---

Basic Rules for Grammar and Mechanics

See B.2, p. 125 in Examiner’s Manual
- Spelling, complete sentences important
- Fragmented sentences always penalized
- Commas
  - required before coordinating conjunctions (mnemonic: FANBOYS - for, and, nor, but, or, yet, so).
  - NOT used after the coordinating conjunction

---

Sentence Combining—Scoring Semantics and Grammar (A)

Conveys same meaning as the original sentences and uses correct grammar and syntax. Score = 2

Conveys same meaning and includes 1 or 2 errors in grammar/syntax. Score = 1

Does not convey same meaning or includes 3 or more errors in grammar/syntax. Score = 0
SC: Evaluate Semantics and Grammar

Does sentence sound right?
- Did writer add, omit, or substitute words?
- Does sentence include spelling errors?
- Does sentence include unusual letter formation?
- Does sentence include poor sentence structure?

</tr>
</tbody>

SC: Scoring Rules for Semantics and Grammar

Poor Sentence Structure

The most common errors that result in poor sentence structure include:

- failing to repeat the subject before introducing a different verb form, and
- omitting words that are essential to conveying the meaning of the original sentences.

Look for omitted words, awkward separations, shifts in tense, nonparallel structures, etc.

SC: Scoring Rules for Semantics and Grammar

Poor Sentence Structure

- Regardless of the number of sentence structure or word omission errors, score 1 error if poor sentence structure does not interfere with meaning.
- Score = 0 if poor sentence structure interferes with meaning.

Sentence Combining—Scoring Extra Credit (C)

Award 1 point if sentence meets the following criteria:

1. Does not use the word and to join two independent clauses; and
2. Uses good sentence structure; and
3. Conveys same meaning as original sentences.
Sentence Combining—Scoring Extra Credit (C)

Award 0 points if sentence meets one of the following criteria:

1. Uses the word and to join 2 independent clauses, OR
2. Uses poor sentence structure, OR
3. Does not convey the meaning of the original sentences.

SB: General Scoring Rules

Fused or Multiple Sentences
- For responses containing a run-on sentence or more than one sentence, score only the sentence containing the target word. (I want the banana. I also want an orange.)
- For a run-on sentence, score 1 error for failing to include a period or semicolon to separate the two independent clauses. (I went too school than I went home.)

<tbody>
<tr>
<td>— for unusual letter formation that interferes with the meaning of the sentence (score 1 error for each unusual letter formation that interferes with meaning). For example, I see the c@t @nd @ dog. (The symbol @ for the word a is ambiguous, it could be read as a or at).</td>
<td>— for unusual letter formation if the sentence is unambiguous and legible. For example, I see the c@t. (The symbol @ for the letter a within a word is consistent and legible).</td>
</tr>
</tbody>
</table>
SB: Scoring Rules for Semantics and Grammar

False and Fictional Information

Do not Penalize

- for statements involving a personified animal, as in a cartoon/comic. For example, An octopus talked to me.

- for a factually incorrect statement. For example, Horses are faster than cheetahs.

Meaningful Statements

Penalize for a sentence that does not clearly convey a meaningful usage of the target word. For example,

- I see an book.
- As we went to the store, we bought games.
- We went to the store and than home.

Sentence Structure

If poor sentence structure does not interfere with meaning, score as 1 error for Criterion A regardless of the number of sentence structure or word omission errors. For example,

- The dog runs and is mine.
- The bus takes me school and home.

If poor sentence structure interferes with conveying the meaning of the sentence, Criterion A = 0 points. For example,

- I can play outside until I finishes my homework.
- The cat is than my dog.
